This program includes instruction in Software Engineering to enable the creation of reliable integrated software systems that meet business goals. This is an entry level program that stacks with other programs in the Information Technology/Information Systems (IT/IS) pathway. It can be combined with the entry level program "Information Technology (IT) and Help Desk Technician" for progress toward the "Information Systems Analyst" award or the terminal "IT/Software Project Management and Automation" award. This program can be completed entirely online and is part of the California Virtual Campus-Online Educational (CVC-OEI) initiative which uses online programs in the service of workforce development. The graduate of this program is able to oversee software endeavors undertaken to produce a product, service or result. These projects have a defined beginning and an end, a defined scope, and defined resources. A project is unique in that it is not a routine operation, but a specific set of operations designed to accomplish a singular goal. Project teams often include people who don't usually work together – sometimes from different organizations and across multiple geographies. These skills have been recognized as a distinct profession supported by an international certification body the Project Management Institute https://www.pmi.org/ and collected into a formal Project Management Body of Knowledge (PMBOK).	MCCC Approved 9/10/2020	Tabled CIPD 10/5/2020 due to lack of consultation Consultation attached	Approved
